

Mother's Day at Blenheim Palace

With 2020 in full swing, Blenheim Palace is harking back to the original Roaring Twenties come Mother's Day, welcoming mothers and grandmothers to a spectacular celebration. Former inhabitants, the 9th Duke of Marlborough and his American second wife, Gladys Deacon, were quite the hosts during the Twenties, putting on legendary parties attended by the likes of Sir Winston Churchill. And Mother's Day is shaping up to be an event that would make the Duke and Duchess proud, complete with a tour of the new 'Let's Misbehave' exhibition – all about Blenheim in the 1920s – Charleston dancing and a decadent Twenties-themed afternoon tea. A spoiling treat for any mother.
